The Vladimir Littauer Continuing Equestrian Education Grant

Captain Vladimir S. Littauer, born in Russia in 1892 was instrumental in bringing the Forward Riding System to the civilian public.

An early, important and controversial advocate of the forward seat riding system. He wrote more than a dozen books between 1930 and 1973, including Common Sense Horsemanship (a book that served as the primary textbook for the ANRC program.) Littauer continued to teach and was a frequent guest lecturer at Sweet Briar College in Virginia where one of his students, Harriet Rogers, founded a riding program for the college in the 1950s.

From this first college program developed the formal organization that teaches the Forward Riding System today at colleges and universities nationwide—The ANRC.
